New UK-only stock library

A new picture library has been launched offering a UK-only experience.

Socialstock offers images that are shot by UK-based photographers for the UK market, picture editor Nick Fallowfield-Cooper tells BJP. 'Socialstock is not only an online image library but also an image resource for our clients. Our picture desk offers image research, photographic commissions and an updated shoot list featuring images requested by our clients.'

Users can request specific images, which will be found or commissioned by a team of editors. 'Our library is stocked with specialist imagery and not overloaded with global images that are unsuitable for our UK-based clients,' says Fallowfield-Cooper.

Tamron unveils new 'anti-vibration'

Tamron is introducing a new high-speed 17-50mm lens featuring a vibration compensation system.

The SP AF17-50mm f/2.8 XR Di II VC LD Aspherical [IF] lens, otherwise known as model B005, is a high-speed telephoto zoom designed specifically for Nikon and Canon digital SLRs fitted with APS-C-sized sensors.

The lens features Tamron's tri-axial vibration compensation mechanism that 'minimises the effects of hand-held camera shake in three planes.' The system is composed of three driving coils that move the internal optical components of the lens based on signals originating from three steel-ball bearings.

To achieve compactness, the vibration compensation lens elements move parallel to the image plane via electronic control, allowing
